Logility Announces i-Connection

ATLANTA, GA - July 7, 1999 - Logility, (NASDAQ:LGTY), the leading supplier of collaborative value chain solutions via the Internet, today announced the Logility i-Connection(sm), to provide Internet-based end-to-end application service provider (ASP), application hosting (AH), and application management (AM) services. The venture will leverage Logility's expertise in Internet-based value chain management applications and the skill base of Logility Value Chain Solutions applications specialists.

"Logility's i-Connection offers several benefits to customers who want an alternative to managing their Logility Value Chain Solutions applications," said Mike Edenfield, CEO of Logility. "As an application service provider, Logility lowers the total cost of ownership for companies, while providing greater communication and collaboration for our customers with their trading partners." Forrester Research predicts the applications hosting market to grow to $21 billion by 2001.

Customers for the i-Connection will include mid-range enterprise organizations seeking network-based applications solutions, and larger enterprises seeking to outsource the management of enterprise applications to run their businesses. The venture will provide integrated services for Internet-based delivery of Logility's Value Chain Management applications for customers around the world.

Through the i-Connection, Logility will provide three levels of service for applications hosting:

1. The Logility i-Community where companies can collaborate with their trading partners through Logility Voyager XPSTTM.
2. The ability to access any Logility Value Chain Solution application through the i-Connection.

3. Application management services with a skilled resource base in installation and management of Logility Value Chain Solutions applications.

i-Commerce initiatives

Logility's comprehensive i-Commerce solutions provide easy-to-use, internet-enabled, end-to-end value chain management solutions to conduct a broad range of business processes. Logility's i-Commerce strategy includes four levels of products and services designed to enable the optimization of the customer's value chain. These products and services include internet-enabled end-to-end value chain applications through the Logility Value Chain Solutions suite, i-Commerce solutions that expand the number of business processes that can be executed electronically via intranets, extranets and the Internet, the Logility i-Community to enable companies to collaborate with trading partners and applications hosting services.

About Logility

Logility develops, markets, installs and supports state-of-the-art software applications that optimize operations throughout the value chain. Backed by a global sales and support organization and key industry alliances, Logility Value Chain Solutions deliver advanced collaborative planning and synchronization between demand opportunities, supply constraints and logistics operations. Logility serves customers such as Eastman Chemical Company, Heineken USA, ConAgra, Franklin Mint, Pharmacia & Upjohn, Reynolds Metals, Sony Electronics, Timex and VF Corp. Logility is a certified Microsoft Solutions Provider and a member of the Microsoft Value Chain Initiative.
